MARKET KEEPS RIGHT
ON MAKING ADVANCES

Money continues to have relaxing
Tendency and it is considered
Keynote of Situation.

GAINS VIEWED WITH SUSPICION

Believed That They Are of More or Less Artificial in Character—Easing of Local Money Stops Inflow of Currency—The Total Sales and Closing Quotations.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Operations for the advance were very aggressively pursued in the stock market today and wide additions were made to yesterday's gains in prices. No change in conditions from those of yesterday were apparent, beyond the continuance of the relaxing tendency in money. This was, in fact, regarded as the keynote of the situation and gave the impetus to the movement in stocks.

The size of individual transactions, the congestion of the dealings in a few special stocks and sensational movements in such stocks gave an impression of participation in the dealings by organizations or individuals possession of resources far beyond the ordinary. The action of the market under such forces takes on a more or less artificial character and reflects acute movement as well as genuine marketing of securities and is for that reason viewed with some suspicion. Enormous operations centered in the Harriman-Pacific and in Reading, suggesting the resumption of market operations by forces which have been quiescent in the trading for a considerable time. Southern Pacific shared fully in the movement and was regarded as giving the motive for it in its extraordinary showing of net earnings for February.

The easing of the local money market has had the effect of checking the flow of currency to this center and New York exchange at Chicago has fallen back to par. It was announced today also that all of the gold engaged in London last Monday for shipment to this point, had been resold in that market. Another helpful factor in the strength of the market was the settlement without a strike of the wage dispute on western railroads. The large selling to take profits during the day was still fully conducted, but the market closed irregular and considerably below the best prices. Bonds were strong.

Total sales par value $2,942,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call. Total sales today 1,327,600 shares, including Copper 122,800; Smelting 45,800; Sugar 5,300; Tobacco 200; Anaconda 35,900; Atchison 55,200; Atlantic Coast Line 200; Baltimore & Ohio 2,400; Louisville & Nashville 5,000; Norfolk & Western 2,800; Reading 226,900; Southern Pacific 107,200; Southern 8,900; Southern pfd 1,400; Union Pacific 198,800; United States Steel pfd 91,200; United States Steel pfd 20,500; Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1,100; Northern Pacific 31,100; Interborough Metropolitan 22,400.

JAPANESE SAINTS.

The One Most Beloved by the People in Hinzu.

Among the many Buddhist-Shinto saints, whose quaint effigies set up in every conceivable nook and corner of Japan make it a "country of graven images," one of the most impressive and interesting is the pathetic person called Hinzu. He was once upon a time a member of that strange company of Buddhist disciples known as the "Sixteen Rakitan." But one day he fell from grace by remarking upon the attractions of a woman, and he was expelled from the society of chaste brethren. The great Buddha gave him, in return for all that his worldliness had cost him, power to heal human ills and to grant the prayers of childless women who longed for motherhood. But he was put outside the temples. He must henceforth sit without, in the midst of the passing throng, and submit himself to personal contact with all that was unclean and healthless. The simple hearted people love him, I think, above all saints. His wooden images in the temple porches are the strangest objects in all Japan. They give him soft cushions to sit upon, and he is always clothed in quaint little cotton stuff collars and mufflers in all sorts of soiled looking colors, and on his head his devotees usually keep a curious little cotton cap.—Eleanor Franklin in Leslie's Weekly.

SHORT CHANGE ARTIST
IS FINED $100 AND COSTS

C. M. Turner May Have to Remain
In the County Jail for the Coming
Three Months.

C. M. Turner, the short change artist arrested Thursday afternoon, was fined $100 and costs in the police court yesterday morning.

Turner made a full confession of his crimes to Mayor Jones, but added that he was with an expert man at the business named Callahan and that he was just learning the art. Turner expressed deep regret for his acts and stated that he had a wife and two small children living in Lambert's Point.

After listening to the story told by Turner Mayor Jones said he would not inflict the extreme penalty, but assessed the man the fine given above.

Turner was unable to pay the money and will have to remain in jail three months unless the amount of the fine is paid in the meantime.

Mrs. Turner, a very stylish woman, came to Hampton from Lambert's Point yesterday afternoon and saw her husband in the office of Mayor Thornton F. Jones. Mrs. Turner was grieved greatly over the crime of her husband, but she will stand by him. It is expected that the wife will attempt to pay the fine today. She had $50 with her when she saw the mayor.

Several men from Newport News came down to Hampton yesterday and recognized Turner as the man who had film-flamed them on the short change trick. One of the men told Turner that if he would return the $10 he got that no charge would be made against him to the police authorities. Turner promised to do this, saying that he could secure the money as soon as he got his freedom. B. D. Turner, of Lambert's Point, a brother of the alleged crook, came over to Hampton yesterday morning and conferred with the authorities concerning the case against his brother.

THE TINY SCIARA.

A Procession of Worms Seen in Hungary and Norway.

In some of the Hungarian forests and in the pine woods of Norway there exists a tiny, wormlike insect called the sciara, of the genus tipula. During the month of July or early in August they gather together in large numbers, preparatory to migrating in search of food or for change of condition. When setting out on this journey they stick themselves together by means of some glutinous matter and form a huge serpent-like mass, often reaching a length of between forty and fifty feet and several inches in thickness. As the sciara is only on an average about three thirty-seconds of an inch in length, with no appreciable breadth whatever, the lumber required to compose a continuous line of the size above mentioned is almost incalculable. Their pace is, of course, very slow, and upon meeting an obstacle, such as a stick or stone, they will either writhe over or around it, sometimes breaking into two bodies for this purpose.

M. Guerin-Meneville, a celebrated French naturalist, said that if the rear portion of this wonderful snake-like procession be brought into contact with the front part and a sort of circle formed the insects will keep moving round in that circle for hours without apparently noticing that they are getting no "forrader" on their journey. If the procession be broken in two, the portions will reunite in a short time. The Norwegian peasants, when they meet one of these trains, will lay some article of their clothing, such as a belt or handkerchief, on the ground in front of it. If the procession passes over it it is regarded as a good sign, but if it makes a way round the reverse is believed.

FORGAVE MRS. SIDDONS.

She Did Not, According to Her Father, Marry an Actor.

Mrs. Siddons, the actress, was born in 1755 at the Shoulder of Mutton Inn, Brecon, south Wales, of parents connected with the theater, her father, Roger Kemble, being a strolling manager. The child Sarah was reared in a theatrical atmosphere, and at ten she was playing Ariel.

As she grew up she became very beautiful and had many admirers, among whom was Henry Siddons, a young actor in her father's company, who had little difficulty in winning the girl's heart. Mr. and Mrs. Kemble had made up their minds that Sarah should not marry in the profession, in consequence of which they strenuously opposed the marriage, and young Siddons in a fit of retaliatory humor composed a song detailing their opposition and his trials, which brought about his speedy dismissal from the company. Sarah left the company, too, and hired out as lady's maid in Warwickshire for two years.

During this time the lovers carried on a lively correspondence and finally, gaining the reluctant consent of the Kembles, were married at Trinity church, Coventry, in 1773, when Sarah was eighteen.

It is said that Mr. Kemble told her if she ever married an actor it would make him discard her forever. After her marriage he said, "I may forgive you without breaking my word, for you have certainly not married an actor," whatever the gentleman himself may think is his vocation." This is on authority of Lady Eleanor Butler, who knew the persons.

AN OLD GERMAN LEGEND.

The Skull With the Nail Driven Through Its Temple.

At Freiburg, Baden, in front of an old chapel rich in medieval painting depicting the rewards of virtue and the wages of sin, stands a great cross, at its foot a skull with a nail driven into the temple.

A shoemaker of Freiburg, according to tradition, died suddenly in the good old days before coroners and juries were too inquisitive and was buried near where the cross stands. Scarcely had the earth upon his grave been we by the rains before his wife took a second husband.

Neighbors talked, but that was all. One night the priest of the parish awoke to find standing at the foot of his bed the ghost of the dead shoemaker. The ghostly figure raised a gory look from its forehead and pointed to a nail driven in the temple.

The body was exhumed, and there was the evidence of the crime just as the specter had indicated. The wife confessed the murder and was executed. But the skull was placed at the foot of the cross as a warning.

"The effect was most wholesome," relates the truthful chronicler, "for since then not a wife of Freiburg has murdered her husband."

A Contrary Flag.

If ever there was anything in the world that went by contraries, it is the Chinese flag. It will be recalled that it is one of the gayest of national standards. The body of the banner is of a pale yellow. In the upper left hand corner is a small red sun, and looking at it is a fierce Chinese dragon. About 1,000 years ago, so the story runs, the Chinese made war upon the Japanese. They prepared for a great invasion. As a prophecy of victory they adopted a standard which is that of the present time. They took the sun of Japan and made it very small. This they put in front of the dragon's mouth to express the idea that the Chinese dragon would devour the Japanese. It happened, however, that the Chinese fleet, conveying an army of 100,000 men, was wrecked on its way to Japan by a great storm, and all but three of the 100,000 perished. The result of recent events has not been any more convincing than the first affair that the Chinese flag has been correctly conceived.

Humor in the Far East.

Abdur Rahman, the late ameer of Afghanistan, had a grim sense of humor which was sometimes exercised without scruple. On one occasion a durbar he was holding was interrupted by a man who, in a state of the greatest excitement, rushed in declaring that the Russians were advancing to invade Afghanistan. Turning aside for a moment from the business in progress, the late ameer in the most unconcerned tones ordered his shahgassi to conduct the man to the summit of a certain watch tower. "Look you out well for the Russians," commanded Abdur Rahman, "for you do not eat until you see them arrive."—Grand Magazine.
